Natixis hires commodities specialist Marc Moure as Senior Adviser

Natixis has announced the appointment of Marc Moure as Senior Adviser to expand the bank's client relationships. He will work for both Global Markets Commodities and Global Energy & Commodities Financing divisions to provide solutions to the financing and hedging needs of clients. Marc will be reporting to Simon Grenfell, Head of Global Markets Commodities, and Dominique Fraisse, Global Head of Energy and Commodities.

Before joining the financial industry, Marc began his career in Hong Kong at the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs as Cultural Attaché. He then moved to Total in the International trading oil division where he spent over four years as a crude oil trader.

In 1986, Marc joined Morgan Stanley to set up the London commodities trading office. He then moved to Singapore in 1990 to head the commodities trading and marketing operations until 1995 when he returned to London as Global Head of Commodities Marketing and Business Development. Until January 2016, Marc was Managing Director, Vice Chairman of the Commodities Division and Chairman of the African business effort for Morgan Stanley.

Marc holds a Master of Sciences in business administration from Sup. de co. Marseille, a D.E.A in Business Administration from ESSEC/IAE Aix en Provence and a D.E.S.S in international trade and transportation from Aix Marseille University.

As the founder of Moure & Co Ltd, an advisory firm specialising in the oil and gas industry, he is also Chairman of the Trustees of the Friends of the French Institute in London.
